decide which it should recommend to the Senate for confirmation. When the name of Pack, whose permanent rank in the army is colonel, was mentioned in the Senate Chamber, the War Department's proposal that he be confirmed in his temporary rank of Lieutenant-Colonel, and the suggestion that he be promoted to major general, were both offered to have the officer promoted now or later. His report was accepted by Senator Spencer, whose son, Capt. Chester Spencer, fought in the Philippines. The Senate then adopted the suggestion of the War Department, and the nomination that he was officially in agreement with the conditions and requirements was passed by a vote of 72 to 10.

U. S. DESTROYER IS SUNK IN COLLISION; 1 DEAD, 15 MISSING

Woolsey, One of Navy's
Most Modern Destroyers,
Cut in Two by American
Steamer Off Panama Coast

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—One naval enlisted man is dead, 15 are missing and two are injured as the result of a collision Saturday between the American destroyer Woolsey and the American steamer Steel Inventor, off the Pacific coast of Panama.

The Woolsey was cut in two at the after tank by the collision and sank at 6 a. m. Saturday, while in tow of the destroyer Aaron Ward. The Aaron Ward and the destroyer Philip have 113 of the Woolsey's survivors aboard.

The collision was reported to the Navy Department yesterday by Admiral Rodman, Commander in Chief of the Pacific fleet, to which the Woolsey, one of the navy's most modern destroyers, was attached.

No Casualties on Steamer.
The damage to the Steel Inventor was slight and no casualties occurred among her crew. She was reported to be proceeding to Balboa under convoy of the destroyer Buchanan.

Admiral Rodman in his report said Tom Stanley Woodcock, first-class engineer, was killed and his body was placed aboard the Buchanan.
The injuries were reported as follows:
D. T. Blakely, fireman, first;
Floyd Colting, fireman, second;
Roman Fleck, blacksmith; John Joseph Galcher, machinist's mate, first; George Joseph Zibello, fireman, second; Elbert Jesse Hanson, fireman, first; Henry George Hancock, engineer, second; Emerson Floyd Long, storekeeper, first; Leo Nor-wicks, fireman, third; Harold Reed, fireman; Mattie Owen Stewart, fireman, third; Webb Stubblefield, fireman, first; George Elmer Woch-man, electrician, third; Charles N.
Yost, fireman, first, and Emerson
Dale Wright, fireman, second.

The collision, Admiral Rodman reported, occurred 12 miles southwest of Caba Island. After the Woolsey had been cut in two, the outer part of the ship was flooded. The destroyer sank as an attempt was being made to bring her into a port.
The report to the Navy Department did not explain the manner in which the missing men were lost, whether due to the collision and the flooding of the vessel, or whether carried down when she sank.

The Woolsey was commanded by Commander H. C. Gearing Jr. She had a length of 218 feet, a breadth of 31 feet and a normal displacement of 1,154 tons. Her speed was rated at 25 knots and her normal complement was 16 officers and 194 men.
A naval court of inquiry into the sinking of the United States destroyer Woolsey by the steamer Steel Inventor off Panama Saturday has been ordered by Admiral Hugh Rodman, Commander in Chief of the Pacific fleet. The court will sit at Balboa, Panama, and will investigate every phase of the collision.

The naval commandant at Panama has been instructed by the department to libel the steamer Steel Inventor to protect the Government against loss if the court of inquiry should develop that the collision was due to negligence on the part of the commanding officer of the merchant craft.

Tuesday—Economy Day

(No Mail or Phone Orders Filled)

The Why of Economy Day

—is very simple from a merchant's point of view. Perhaps, however, you have wondered and felt it is but unfair that inability to shop on Tuesday should deprive you of the special bargains.

The secret, which is after all none at all, is that in years gone by Tuesday was not a busy day. Overhead expenses went on just the same, with the resultant situation that the week's record was blighted by one bad day.

The very obvious remedy was to create a stimulant to overcome the disastrous elements—offerings of such intense economy as to literally force buying, were presented on that day. The desired effect was accomplished, and Tuesday—Economy Day—has become an institution to us and to the buying public of St. Louis, a day when one may confidently expect to achieve economy in the highest sense of the word.

STIX, BAER & FULLER.

SENATE DEMOCRATS EXPLAIN ATTITUDE ON HYDE BILLS

Minority Leaders Say There Will Be No Filibuster to Prevent Passage of Governor's Measures.

By a Staff Correspondent of the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Feb. 24.—Democratic Senators after informal discussions yesterday of the position the minority will take on Gov. Hyde's consolidation bills, when they come up for consideration said, there would be no filibuster by the Democrats for the purpose of attempting to prevent passage of the bills, but that every effort would be made to obtain the adoption of amendments to change provisions which the Democrats say they consider unwise.

Believe Program Unwise. "There will be no filibustering in the way of unnecessarily long speeches or by offering frivolous amendments. Unquestionably there will be amendments offered by Democratic Senators, but they will be offered in a sincere desire to correct the bills."

"There is no question that the Democrats are almost a unit. If they are not a unit in believing most of the program is unwise, but we know the Republicans have the votes to pass them and that we will have little or no voice in the final action on the measures."

"In such a case our duty seems very clear. It is our duty to do all in our power to bring the bills to the greatest degree of perfection possible in so far as perfection of the legal construction of the measures is concerned."

"Nearly all the Democratic Senators have constituents who are vitally interested either for or against the measures, or some provisions of them. It is our right and duty to represent our constituents on these bills just as we represent them on other measures."

Another Senator, who would not permit the use of his name, said: "My Republican associates in the Senate seem to be ready to jump through the hoop when the whip cracks. That means that with very few, if any exceptions, they are going to swallow the Hyde program without a question. There is no need to make reply, theirs not to reason why, theirs not to do and die. They are to be told that they are to take the bills as they are offered and pass them."

To Offer Amendments. "It is possible that some of the Republicans will be willing to vote for some amendments. The Democrats will offer the amendments and, unless I am mistaken, some of the amendments will be of a character that some of the Republicans will find it very difficult to vote against them."

A real filibuster by the Democrats probably could delay action on the Hyde program to an extent which would prevent the passage of a few of the bills. This does not seem to be the intention, but because of the fact that more than 20 measures of first importance will be up for passage and only 18 days remain for the work, a day on amendments and debate of each bill might prevent some of them from being reached. Of course the Legislature can prolong its session to any extent it desires, but for even four of the 18 days the members would be serving at $1 a day, and for every day after that they would be limited to $1 a day. They seldom remain in session long at that pay.

DON'T NEGLECT COLDS RELIEVE WITH TURPO

The first sneeze is nature's signal that you are catching cold. Don't neglect it for neglect has let many slight colds develop into grippe, influenza or even pneumonia. The time to stop a cold is right at the beginning. The way to treat it is to apply Turpo, the Turpentine Ointment, which fights the cold right at the very root of the trouble, and stops it developing.

Turpo is a clear, pleasant smelling ointment or salve made of distilled Turpentine, Camphor and Menthol, scientifically combined to get the best results of these well known and reliable remedies. It does not stain even the finest fabric. It has proven so successful that over 150,000 jars are sold annually. Turpo gives quicker relief than any indefinite "vapor" treatment. Your doctor will confirm that Turpo is a valuable home remedy. Your drugist will sell it to you on trial. Money back if not satisfactory.

Sold in white oval jars with the orange and black label, at 25c and 50c.

TWO MEN CAUGHT AT SAFE IN OIL FILLING STATION

Policemen Surprise Pair; Combination Plate Hammered Off Strongbox in Standard Oil Place.

A light in the office of the Standard Oil Co. filling station at Delmar boulevard and Lake avenue today at 12:05 a. m. attracted the notice of Policemen Egan and Nolan, one of whom stationed himself at the front door, while the other went to the rear door. An automobile was standing in an alley.

Egan, who went to the rear, observed two men in front of the safe, drew his revolver and entered. Nolan observed his action, and, running to the rear, entered also.

The men in front of the safe surrendered. They were found to be Clifford Jones, 25, 1419 South Broadway, who had been released from the police holdover about 12 hours before, having been taken in the Saturday night raids in the rear store of Beverly Brown at 1135 Chestnut street, and Thomas E. Hayes, 25, of 5017 Delmar boulevard. Jones was found to have $60 in cash and Hayes to have $16 and 192 Federal luxury stamps. The automobile, a sport roadster of expensive make, bore an automobile license issued to Hayes.

The combination of the safe in the office had been knocked off, but the door had held and part of the safe filling between the inner and outer walls of the door had been picked out. On the floor were two large hammers, a chisel, a steel bar and two pieces of spring leaf such as motorists use to pry off tires. The men made no statement.

400-Pound Safe Taken.
Between 11 o'clock last night, when J. A. Pfunder closed his drug store at 4837 Natural Bridge road, and 4:30 this morning, when he opened it, a 400-pound safe, measuring 29 by 30 by 24 inches, containing about $200, was carried away. A side door opening on Euclid avenue was jammed and 192 Federal luxury stamps were under a desk behind the prescription counter, was wheeled to the door and across the sidewalk to a vehicle.

Pfunder says he bolted the door, top and bottom, at 9:30 o'clock. When the lock was forced the bolts were not sprung, so he concludes that before the store was closed for the night somebody, who he was busy, shot the bolts back.

Five Holdups in Hour.
Three men, ranging from 20 to 27 years old, staged five holdups in less than one hour last night.

They took $16 from Otto Zostrow, 2611 North Florissant avenue, and $120 from Theodore Vogel, 3849 Grover avenue, at Twenty-fifth and Palm streets, at 9 p. m., instructing their victims to "run."

At 9:25 o'clock they took $2.12 from a man who stood at 15 from Marion Phillips, 3241 North Twenty-fifth street, near Palm street, and told Phillips to "run."

At 9:40 they took $1.50 and a watch from Joseph Walsh, who heared his home at 1424 North Twenty-second street, and again gave the instruction, "run." Walsh ran 15 feet, stopped and turned around. The robbers were watching, and fired one shot, whereupon Walsh resumed running.

At 9:50 the trio took $1 from John Colegrave, 2522 West Dodier street, near Twenty-fifth and Palm streets, and gave their customary command to "run."

At 9:55 p. m. they took $1.50 and a watch from Raymond Ruickoff, half a block from his home, at 3400 North Twenty-second street.

An hour later four men, three of whom were active in the holdup and who resemble the trio which had conducted the above robberies, stopped Mr. and Mrs. George H. Croft, of 3704 West Florissant avenue, at Obear avenue and Emily street, taking $1 from Croft.

"Where's your watch?" one of the robbers asked. "Haven't got any," Croft replied. "Better get one," the robber advised, "and you won't be out so late and get robbed."

OLD King Cole
Was a sorry old soul
Till his housekeeper bought
Bond Bread
Then he cried full of mirth:

worth
Twice as much as the

STAR IN 'NOT GUILTY' HAS A DUAL ROLE
"Chickens," "Madame X" and "The Outside Woman" Are Other Local Headliners.

Sylvia Bremer and Richard Dix have the stellar roles in "Not Guilty," an interesting picture drama which opened yesterday at the New Grand Central and End Lyric. This play gives Dix an unusual opportunity to play the double role of twin brothers and he does it well. One brother confesses to another that he has shot and killed a man. The guiltless brother agrees to carry the burden of blame for the shooting, feeling that moral blame should attach to him because in boyhood he accidentally shot his brother in the head with a rifle, making him mentally irresponsible. He leaves his brother in his place and becomes a wanderer. Matters are complicated by the fact that the girl he loves does not know of this arrangement. Neither does she know there are two brothers. The brother who remains at home makes love to this girl and she thinks it is merely a continuation of the other brother's suit. The tangle is straightened out in a dramatic manner when she is on a tour of India, and meets the missing brother. It is proven that the brother at home did not fire the shot that killed a man, but another's hand had pulled the trigger.

Douglas MacLean at the Missouri. At the Missouri Douglas MacLean in "Chickens" is a most amusing semi-rural comedy in which a young man who has fallen heir to a fortune takes up chicken raising as a fad, but has to keep at it in earnest after he learns that his fortune has been lost.

On the adjoining farm is a young woman who also raises chickens. This part is well taken by Grace George. There are funny episodes involving the trading of automobiles by the heir and a country youth and many humorous incidents which turn about the city man's blunders in his efforts to raise chickens profitably.

Double Bill at the Liberty. The Liberty has a double bill on which it is featuring Pauline Frederick in "Madame X" and Jane Novak in "The Golden Trail." Though "Madame X" is not new to the screen here, it is so full of dramatic values that it seems to have lost none of its interest. Pauline Frederick has one of those tear-compelling roles which she interprets in strict conformity with the French standards which governed the original production of the play on the stage. She portrays a woman who has been driven from home by her husband, a high Government official, and who conceals her identity because of her love for her son and her unwillingness to do anything that might interfere with her husband's career. The big moment comes when she is accused of a murder and finds that the lawyer appointed to defend her is her own son. The husband witnesses the trial. She is acquitted, but when her husband goes to a court anteroom to greet her they find her dead.

"The Golden Trail" opens with scenes in a college football game. There is an honest player and a cheat. The cheat discredits the honest man, but evilution comes later when all concerned are in Alaska, contending for a gold mine claim. Again the cheat shows his true nature but this time he is foiled. The play is enlivened with a number of Alaska dance hall scenes which seem to show that prohibition hasn't got there yet.

Good Comedy at Delmonte. Seriousness has been thrown to the winds in the program for the first part of the week at the Delmonte Theater. The feature picture is "The Outside Woman," a farce-comedy, with Wanda Hawley as the star. The second film is also a comedy, "His Flery Best," and Mutt and Jeff have their usual place on the program.

"The Outside Woman" is well done and Miss Hawley shows to advantage as the young wife who has a mania for trading off things she finds around the house. For an old shawl she exchanges a still older idol, a piece of bric-a-brac which she thinks worthless, but which her husband was taking care of at the request of the curator of a museum. When the wife discovers that the museum is sending for the valuable antique, she begins a mad scramble to get it back, which carries her up and down a fire escape between her apartment and the rooms of an artist in the same building, who purchased the idol. Of course, the artist's wife comes home in time to find her, which adds to the complications. The photography is excellent and the scenes in good taste.

The Lungstras way of cleaning clothes

What about clothes that don't "Show Dirt?"

Most outer garments are made of dark fabrics that don't "show dirt."

For that reason most people think nothing at all of wearing a suit for weeks, or even months, between cleanings.

But dust and dirt gather in the fabric of clothes every day. They may not "show" but they're there.

Along with dust and dirt are germs. And when conditions are to their liking, germs cause disease.

Modern ideals of cleanliness would indicate that outer garments should be dry-cleaned frequently—and by the Boil-in-Gasoline process.

For tests made by the U. S. Government show that the Boil-in-Gasoline process is the only method of dry-cleaning, in general use, that will kill germs.

And, of course, boiling in gasoline gets all the ingrained dirt and dust, as well as surface spots, out of clothes.

Frequent and regular cleaning of outer garments by the Boil-in-Gasoline process is destined to become a recognized health precaution.

Millers Win and Gain on Scullins In Soccer League

Champions Defeat Innisfaills,
2-0, While Screw Co. Holds Bradyman Even.

over the Innisfaills, while the Scullins were being held to a scoreless draw by the Screw Co. yesterday, tightened up the race in the St. Louis Soccer League at Cardinal Field. As a result of the clashes, the men of Tate Brady are only two points ahead of the Millers, the present

Despite the first round of municipal elimination clashes, a crowd estimated at 1500 turned out for yesterday's twin bill.

This broke up the Seals' forward line, Brady being forced to use Tom Davis, a newcomer, who even had trouble getting his foot on the ball. Then the steel workers did not put up near the article of soccer they displayed the previous week against the Ben Millers. In fact, the Scullins played a listless article of the kicking game, and only the S-row Co. athletes' inability to shoot goals saved the men of Brady from defeat.

McCarthy made several changes in his lineup, sending Slater to fullback and the rest to the forward line.

The real interest of the afternoon was centered around the closing battle between the Millers and Innisfauls. Several newcomers were introduced by the managers. Foley had Donovan, one of the stars of the Municipal league at outside left forward, while Sutter in goal and Kelleher at full-back, graduates of the Ben Miller class of the Municipal League, starred for the champions.

Archdeacon First to Score.

For the first half and 15 minutes of the second, the tilt was even up with neither team being able to score. And then came the break. During a scrimmage in front of the uprights, Archdeacon pushed the ball into the net for the first goal.

The Millers scored their second goal

10 minutes later by some of the prettiest soccer exhibited all afternoon. Al McHenry got the ball and passed to Rube Pottee at center because of Dunn's illness. Pottee dribbled past the Innisfail backs, pulled Barnett

Unless something unforeseen occurs the Scullins will next Sunday play off the U. S. F. A. cup game with the Bricklayers. The next regularly scheduled league games bring together the Millers and Screw Co. and Scullins and Innisfaits.

SPRING IS COMING—TAKE GUDE'S PEPTO-MANGAN

Thousands of People Take It Every Spring to Regain Health and Fight Illness

MAKES BLOOD RICH AND RED

Helps to Build Up the Entire Human System with Life-Giving Oxygen

In the Springtime, after a winter sickness or long days spent up indoors, the blood becomes clogged with waste matter. The little red corpuscles in your blood become inferior. They do not absorb enough oxygen when they pass through the lungs. The tiny cells, billions of them, miss the nourishing effect of the oxygen, and faces become pale, bodies weak.

If you feel out of sorts, cranky, tired out most of the time, it is probably because your blood is weak. If you have no other disease pulling you down, you can be pretty sure your blood is weak and you need the help that Gude's Pepto-Mangan, the well known Spring blood tonic gives.

Gude's Pepto-Mangan makes rich red blood and puts new life into the red corpuscles. If you are anemic, a thin-blooded condition, Gude's Pepto-Mangan will restore the right number of red corpuscles. You will notice a general improvement, better appetite, more restful sleep, better complexion, widespread clear eyes.

Get Gude's Pepto-Mangan at your druggist. He has it in liquid and tablet form. It makes no difference which you take, because the tablets and the liquid form both have the same medicinal value. Get the genuine Gude's Pepto-Mangan with the full name, "Gude's Pepto-Mangan," printed on the package.

LABOR FOR LAMMERT FOR SCHOOL BOARD

President of Building Trades Council Indorsed by Unions as Candidate.

Charles J. Lammert, president of the Building Trades Council and until recently a Democratic member of the Board of Election Commissioners, was indorsed by the Central Trades and Labor Union yesterday as a candidate for one of the five vacancies in the Board of Education, and a committee from the trades body was directed to urge the Republican and Democratic city committees to place him on the ticket as a representative of organized labor.

It was pointed out at the meeting that Lammert, as a member of the Board of Education, during the controversy over the creation of the Cleveland High School, which had been undertaken on an open shop basis, proved himself capable of taking care of union labor's cause. The indorsement of Lammert was made after the central body, by vote, had declared that membership in the Board of Education is not a political office. The constitution of the Central Trades and Labor Union expressly forbids the body from indorsing any candidate for political office.

Labor to Fight Two Bills.

Following an address by R. T. Woods, president of the State Federation of Labor, the Legislative Committee of the central body was instructed to enter a vigorous protest against two bills pending in the State Legislature, one introduced by Senator McCullough and designated by trades unionists as an anti-strike measure, and the other introduced by Representative Vandeventer, which empowers Prosecuting Attorneys and Justices of the Peace to summons and examine witnesses in regard to any crime committed. Both of these bills were characterized by Woods as having been drafted in the interests of enemies of organized labor.

Unity of action in support of the proposed compromise compensation bill at Jefferson City was pledged after Woods had pointed out that divergent opinions expressed by representatives of various bodies of organized labor had embarrassed the committee of the State Federation of Labor, which was sent to Jefferson City to urge the passage of the bill. Woods announced that "The Hammer" bill, which has been reported favorably by the Legislative Committee of the Board of Aldermen, should be amended to exclude members of unions on picket duty. It was pointed out that the bill, in its present form, could be used to prohibit pickets from asking customers of a business house on the union's "unfair" list to go elsewhere.

It was announced that contributions from various locals affiliated with the central body to the fund for the benefit of the striking waitresses, from Feb. 13 to last Saturday, amounted to $1184.59, bringing the total amount collected since Dec. 27 to $2057.72.

PRIMARY FILING TIME TO END AT 9 O'CLOCK TONIGHT

Three Candidates Have Filed for Republican and Three for Democratic Nomination for Mayor.

The Election Board's office in the City Hall will remain open until 9 o'clock tonight, when the filing time for candidates in the primary of March 11 will end. Up to this morning three candidates had filed for the Republican nomination for Mayor and three for the Democratic nomination. Fifty-one Republicans and four Democrats had filed for nomination as Aldermen.

Comptroller A. N. Nott was the only entry for the Republican nomination for Comptroller, and no one had filed for the Democratic nomination for that office. Socialist nominations for Mayor, Comptroller and Aldermen in all the odd-numbered wards except the Nineteenth, had been filed.

"LOADING" OF SPONGES BARRED

Trade Commission Order Ends Soaking to Increase Weights.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23.—To protect the sponge-buying public and incidentally to preserve "light as a sponge" as a figure of speech, the Federal Trade Commission has ordered a number of firms engaged in packing and selling sponges to refrain from increasing the weight of sponges by soaking them in solutions of salt, Epsom salts, glycerin, glucose, sugar or other substances. The commission said the practice of "loading" sponges grew up in the industry many years ago and was brought to the Florida fisheries from abroad. The cost of "loading" amounts to 20 cents a pound, and ultimately is borne by the consumer, the commission said.

REMOVAL OF COLONIALS URGED

A resolution requesting the State Department of the incoming administration to request France to withdraw its Colonial troops from the German Rhineland territory because of alleged outrages upon German women by men of African and Asiatic origin, was adopted yesterday at a meeting of the South Side Association at Concordia. Turner Hall, Thirteenth and Arsenal streets.

The resolution also requests that the matter be laid before President Harding as soon as he shall have taken office, and also before the United States Senate.

UNEMPLOYMENT IS INCREASING IN MANY LINES

Federal Reserve Report Shows Situation Is Being Equalized in Part by Return of Workers to Plants.

MARKED SHORTAGE IN BUILDING LINES

Retail Business Has Not Suffered Seriously From Decline; Several Industries Increase Pay Rolls.

The monthly report of the Federal Reserve Bank in the Eighth (St. Louis) District, issued this morning, says that, according to State and Federal labor commissioners and employment bureaus, unemployment in many lines is increasing. "At the moment, however," the report says, "total unemployment figures are being in a measure equalized by the return of workers to plants which have resumed operations on part time. The trend of wages is lower, but readjustments are gradual, and in some instances have been upon the initiative of the workers themselves."

"In the building, metal, mining and transportation lines, unemployment is most marked. The movement back to farms is reported on the increase. Unemployment among women in centers of great population has gained headway. The only shortage is among domestics and trained nurses."

The report says that retail business has not been affected by unemployment in the degree that might have been expected.

"Public purchasing power seems strong, though directed in more conservative channels than at any time since the period of extravagant spending came to an end. Mail order trade is well behind that of a year ago, but somewhat better during the first two weeks of February than in the initial fortnight of 1921."

The backward state of the building industry is unchanged, the report says. Very little new construction is being undertaken, and costs continue too high to attract capital investment, thus preventing persons of moderate means from erecting homes. Work in the country is confined to necessary repairs and road construction.

"Incipient improvement in general business conditions" is noted in the introductory summary. "Retail merchants in city and country have undertaken completing broken stocks and replenishing depleted shelves. Wholesalers and jobbers are buying with more confidence and in heavier volume."

"These manifestations are confined to industries in which readjustment has progressed to greatest lengths, such as dry goods, groceries, millinery, furniture, clothing and shoes. Lines wherein readjustment has been less complete show relatively little improvement and are in a state of considerable uncertainty. Among the latter may be mentioned lines based on iron and steel."

Buying Is Cautious.

"Never before was buying more cautious and discriminating. This applies alike to manufacturers, wholesale and retail. The element of speculation has for the nonce been completely eliminated. Purchasers of goods are accumulating only what they believe their customers will want during the next 20 to 30 days. Future buying, such as was practiced in past seasons, has failed utterly to open up."

"Dealers in provisions report a singular phase in the demand for their wares, which is that despite general economies being practiced by the public the demand centers in choice cuts, the cheaper meats being neglected and very dull. In the entire list of hog products the only item selling higher than a year ago is pork tenderloins."

"Supplies of both coal and coke are abundant, with surplus stocks accumulating at many points in face of a rather sharp curtailment of production. This is due to two main causes, the mild winter and heavy slump in the demand for steaming coal occasioned by the closing down of plants. The trend of prices is easier. Coal at Illinois mines can be had as low as $2.10 per ton."

"According to officials of railroads operating in this district, freight is moving in smaller volume than at any time since the end of the switchmen's strike last year."

"Collections as a rule are reported as being unsatisfactory, especially through the Southern tier of the district."

126 Failures in East.

"Commercial failures in the Eighth Federal Reserve District during January, according to banks, were 124, involving liabilities of $2,270,148, against 24 in January, 1920, with liabilities of $163,764. In December, last year, there were 124 failures, involving liabilities of $3,030,670, and in November, 1920, 25 failures, with liabilities of $129,588."

Reports from all sections of the district indicate a very dull real estate market, both in the city and country.

"Bird Day in Illinois Oct. 28. By the Associated Press. ST. LOUIS, Feb. 24. Gov. Small has set aside April 15 and Oct. 28 of the year as Arbor and Bird days."

VOCALION

Records for March

The great, warm-hearted West is immortalized in the delightful song that John Charles Thomas presents as his latest Vocalion recording. "Out where the sun shines a little brighter and friendships are a little truer"—that is the West which Mr. Thomas, with sincere artistry, makes so real in this altogether different song. For your Easter morning, there is an exquisite duet recording of Qui est homo (Who Would Not Pity?) from Rossini's Stabat Mater, sung by May Peterson and Rita Fornia of the Metropolitan Opera Company. A fascinating array of popular tunes includes the "Afgar" song-lit, "Why Don't You?" Ernest Ball's new ballad, "Mother of Pearl," "All She'd Say Was Umh Huh," and an irresistible fox-trot record of "Broadway Rose," played by Al Jocker's top-notch dance orchestra.

KIEL ON HIS RECORD THE MAN WHO HAS DONE THINGS!

RESULTS count—not promises, oratory or criticism.

For two terms, Mayor Kiel's record of RESULTS has been close to 100 per cent. He has over been ready and willing to participate in and promote anything that had as its purpose the uplifting or betterment of St. Louis. His record of eight years points unerringly to RESULTS. In his candidacy for renomination, he stands squarely ON HIS RECORD.

The financial affairs of St. Louis during the Kiel administration have been conducted economically and along business lines. The financial credit of St. Louis is of the highest class. The bonds of the city are quoted at a higher figure than almost any other American city. The United States census figures show that the cost of government in St. Louis is less than any of the 17 largest cities in the country, with the possible exception of New Orleans and Milwaukee.

Among the RESULTS under Mayor Kiel for a greater St. Louis are:

Modern municipal dock, with freight-handling equipment for river and rail.
Largest sand-filtration plant in the world, assuring plentiful clear pure water supply.

One-way streets, safety zones, traffic lamps, prohibited vehicles from parking standing street cars to safeguard pedestrians.

Lindell and Washington cut-offs, widened and opened streets, eliminated dangerous corners to facilitate traffic.

Completed free bridge. Vehicles crossing bridge free have saved $1,016,261 in tolls.

Partial motorization of Fire Department, increasing efficiency in protection of property.

Bellevue Farm for wayward boys. Modern Children's Building for children awaiting Juvenile Court.

Municipal open-air theater in Forest Park. Annual season of summer opera.

Further development of the great northwest industrial district employing thousands of workmen.

Collected $1,800,000 of the long-disputed mill tax from the United Railways.

Established annual municipal Christmas festival and tree in Twelfth street.

Equipped and developed 25 public playgrounds for children. Annual playground festival.

Tower Grove, Union, Twelfth, Chouteau and seven other viaducts eliminating dangerous grade crossings.

The record of the Kiel administration along progressive lines has had much to do with the new spirit in St. Louis which has aroused the city to its possibilities and stimulated its industrial development. The actual RESULTS accomplished by the Kiel administration for St. Louis and St. Louisans are proven facts. Mayor Kiel should be renominated at the primary March 11—ON HIS RECORD.

THE POST-DISPATCH PLATFORM
 I know that my retirement will make no difference in its cardinal principles, that it will always fight for progress and reform, never tolerate injustice or corruption, always fight for the rights of all parties, never being to any party, always opposing privileged classes and public plunderers, never lacking sympathy with the poor, always remaining devoted to the public welfare, never satisfied with merely printing news, always being a platform for the people, never afraid to attack wrong, whether by predatory plutocracy or predatory poverty.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE

"Raids" an Unconstitutional Outrage.
 To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch:

Your denunciation of the "raids" which have become the pastime of the Police Department of this city, must find the full approval of every believer in constitutional government.

The silence of the press regarding these infamous and unconstitutional "raids," gives rise to the question: "For what possible good is the freedom of the press, if this freedom is not used in behalf of freedom?"

There is no gaining the fact that the press of the country, as a whole, has been betrayed by the American people for the last year or two, through the failure to condemn the nation-wide assault which has been made upon constitutional government and American institutions.

If these "raids" wearing the badge of American police officers had "raided" the newspapers of this country and forbidden the free publication of editorial opinion, a "raid" would have been heard around the world. The screaming lines of "unconstitutional," "infamous," "damnable," "outrageous" would have been heard in the ears of 100,000,000 of people; and justly so.

Yet, these "raids," which have taken place here as an unconstitutional, as infamous, as damnable, as though the press had been "raided" in the manner mentioned. The Constitution is as emphatic as to manner of procedure regarding search, seizure and arrest, as it is regarding the freedom of the press.

History tells that the American people have in the past carried battle to its enemies. Have we become so spineless that we will not fight when battle is thrown into our laps? Have we left to the artist to express for us "The Spirit of 1776"? Does the spirit live upon canvas only?

Every "raid" conducted in this city lacks but one feature to make it as thoroughly Russian as anything known in the days of the "Reds" and the "Whites" of the "Czar." The manner of procedure is identical in the same as in the days of Russia's despots. The only difference is the absence of penitence, which must be respected. Yet, the police authorities are arresting men and women without any process of law whatsoever; rounding them up as though they were stray cattle. And to add to the damnable infamy of the miserable unconstitutional business, they are herding these "criminals" behind the bars when the town is over-run with thugs, highwaymen, house-breakers and murderers.

How long, how long, will the people of America be abused and deceived by this "fake war" upon "criminals" in the name of law and order? Probably 10 or 15 per cent of our self-righteous citizens think "great good" is being done through these outrageous "raids," the balance of us stand by, in disgust, seemingly unable to do that which we know is both unconstitutional and infamous.

The Fourth Amendment to the Constitution provides for search, seizure and arrest for law violations under such conditions as the law prescribes. It is the duty of every officer who disregards the provisions of this amendment should be severely dealt with.

This city will see due time and itself suffer from the total loss of dollars to the damage caused through these "raids," and there is little doubt but that the taxpayers will have to pay the bills for these "raids." When Lincoln said, "This country cannot exist half free, and half slave," he might have gone a step further and said, "neither can this country exist part free and part tyrannical." We are not drifting toward tyranny, we have arrived.

Some years ago a writer said: "If it were not for the Post-Dispatch, St. Louis would be put upon the auction block and sold to the highest bidder." I have repeated this statement 18,000 times.

See the task through, please.

TIME FOR PUBLIC PROTECTION.

If the evidence on which Government indictments have been brought against coal operators, miners and operators' associations proves to have been based, it will be shown that the consuming public has been victimized under circumstances which make the offense peculiarly outrageous. The charges indicate that, while coal was available in plenty, the operators conspired to raise the old familiar alarm of war-time shortage to induce consumers to buy when- ever and at whatever price would be of advantage to themselves. Not only was there no normal shortage of supply, but it is charged that artificial shortage was contrived by closing certain mines and keeping them in idleness.

Another ominous phase of the charges is shown in the unholy alliance between operators and mine workers through which it was made possible to conclude peace among themselves by taking their differences out of the public.

Whatever disposition of the indictments is made by the courts, evidence establishing the reasonable plausibility of the charges as revealed in the trials is sure to bring the business of coal production to the bar of public opinion with more force than ever before.

For the coal industry exercises a natural monopoly. If the mines refuse to sell short of an extortionate price there is no way of invoking competition by setting up factories in Oregon or Minnesota. And there is no redress for the public except in Government intervention.

Application of the Sherman law is Government intervention. But even should prosecution under it result in heavy fines and long prison sentences, as it usually does not, it will never restore to the pockets of the people the amounts of which they have been deprived.

Measures of prevention as against punishment ranging from mild Government regulation to Government ownership have been advocated. Dr. Garfield, following his instructive experience as fuel administrator, has proposed a plan providing for two commissions which would have power to call upon the various governmental agencies for facts whereby costs of production could be ascertained, and providing also for recommendations by the President and the power of price fixing by Congress. Even a law requiring only publicity of reasonable prices as officially determined would be a step forward.

After it has been duly established that the guiding genius of ownership and labor at the coal mines do not scruple, given the means, to defraud the public, the public will demand protection.

THE CAPITOL DECORATIONS.

Revising the Capitol decorations bill after it had been defeated in the Senate is an act highly creditable to the Legislature and meets the expectations of the State Senator Irwin, whose criticisms precipitated the storm and caused the defeat of the bill on the floor. It is a sign of the Legislature's going to the defense of the measure after it had been amended, and he must be commended for not wishing to see his strikers have the effect of stopping the work.

It is an excellent idea to include in the bill a release clause by which the Governor indorses contracts entered into by the Capitol Decorations Commission. Such a precaution will give the people additional confidence in a wise and business-like expenditure of the appropriation. It is to be hoped that the House will accept that safeguard and follow the Senate in passing the bill. The Missouri Capitol is one of the most beautiful in the Union. It is not complete so long as its walls are bare and the spaces designed for decoration remain without the finishing touches of the mural painter, the sculptor, the weaver of tapestries and the worker in glass mosaics. Enough has already been done in the building to indicate the charm and attractiveness to result from completing the whole design of decoration. To have at Jefferson City the most beautiful Capitol west of the Mississippi River is something worth striving for. It will not merely increase our pride in the State, but it will win for Missouri a fine and enduring acclaim.

There will be a glad surprise both in and out of the State when Missouri becomes celebrated for something more than mules. An early proof of what this means may be found in the March number of the Ladies Home Journal, which contains two beautiful reproductions in color of the striking decorations by N. C. Wyeth. We have sought to advertise Missouri, and have undertaken to raise funds for that purpose. Here is a powerful ally of which we probably have not thought.

ITALY'S FORMAL PROTEST.

The objection raised by Italy in her note to the allies to the 12 per cent tax on German exports in the reparations terms of the Paris conference will encourage Germany. It is collected, to press other claims on the London meeting. Is it not likely to have another and better effect?

The Italian protest goes straight to the pith of this unwise embargo. As a nation that buys largely of Germany, Italy feels she will have to pay this tax in considerable part. She argues that Germany will have to advance the price on her merchandise sufficiently to absorb this tax. If Germany adopts that policy—and nobody will question that it is the logical and natural expedient—then the tax will be shifted by Germany to Italy and to other countries that purchase German goods. Instead of an export tax on Germany it will be an import tax on the peoples trading with Germany.

TO THE VICTORS—

One of the very first things Mr. Harding will do as President, according to a special correspondent of the Post-Dispatch, will be to react to his predecessor's entire order taking the postoffices out of politics. The Democrats now enjoying those lucrative commissions will presently be muzzled out, gently, perhaps, but firmly. They will make way for those accomplished and honest Republicans who, as far back as the signing of the armistice, felt that Warren G. Harding was the man for 1920 and who refused to be diverted from that decision by the military glamor of Gen. Wood, the clanking eloquence of Lorden or the purring persuasiveness of Hiram Johnson.

That we have estimable folks who will be grieved at this frank return to the spoils system is understandable. Academician, philosopher, everybody with a string of letters affixed to his name, will have a highbrow sigh at this sinister pragmatism. But great political parties do not thrive on an exclusive diet of poetry, sentiments and ennobled aspirations. Political parties are mighty trenchermen that require the loaves and fishes.

And to many of us it will seem like a glimpse of old times to see the Republicans back in their old, accustomed haunts—the postoffices. The Democrats never did belong in those sinucures. They were not to the manner born. They were interlopers. Their tenure may have been certified by the verdict of the polls, but that verdict was a vicissitude of politics rather than the considered conclusion of rational progress. They were mere squatters, those Democratic Postmasters. Out the door they go.

Our era of dreaming is done. We return to the realities. To the victors belong the postoffices. It is apple-blossom time in Normalcy.

CHANGE IN LABEL ONLY.

The defeat of the St. Louis annexation bill by a committee's unfavorable report, is a striking demonstration of machine power.

Here is a bill that does not involve a penny of the State's funds, that does not affect any of the State institutions with their various revenue-producing facilities. The measure merely proposes to let the people of St. Louis County choose their own form of local government. No honest objection to this bill is conceivable. Yet it is beaten.

The St. Louis County Republican machine is the force that beat this bill. That machine finds prestige and profit in its present dominion, which it is determined to retain, and will retain, as long as our Legislatures are acquiescent.

Those Legislatures have been acquiescent a long time. For years the St. Louis County Republican machine had a defensive alliance with the Democratic cabal at Jefferson City. It is only too evident that a similar working agreement has been arranged with the present administration. The revelation is disillusioning. Did the upheaval of last November leave everything unchanged except the label? Is it the same old gang rule, the same old gang ethics?

What must be the answer when a political boss proves conclusively that he has more influence with the Assembly than the million people living in St. Louis and St. Louis County?

COMMITTED TO ANARCHY.

The incident out of which grew the resignation of Gen. Crozier, commandant of the auxiliary police division, or "Black and Tans" in Ireland, together with that of his adjutant, is the most damning indictment of British Government's Irish policy that has yet come to light.

Thirty cadres of the police division were arrested, tried and dismissed for deliberately looting a private grocery store of food, whisky, jewelry, pictures, rugs and a sack of sugar. After making this haul they went out for more. The raid is alleged to have been carried out under platoon commanders, with the assistance of military authority.

After the discharged men had departed for England, and after the commander in chief of the constabulary had confirmed the dismissals, orders were issued from the Irish office to reinstate the men. The resignations followed. Here is a clear case of the overruling by the British Government of an attempt on the part of its military to preserve law, order and civilized military methods.

By this one action the Irish office of the Crown Government series notice that, notwithstanding the efforts of its subordinates to uphold law and order, it stands for anarchy and license and loot. What more proof than this does De Valera need to support his charges of uncivilized warfare?

WHAT'S THE MATTER WITH THE MOVIES?

Those who foretell a vast and rapid growth of movie art have been disappointed to observe that the phenomenal development of its mechanical side has been accompanied by no similar improvement in literary and dramatic standards. The highly perfected camera of today clicks off miles of the same gush recorded by its crude precursor, and our modern sumptuous playhouses are given over to the brand of entertainment served in the tent show of the past.

Perhaps the most discouraging feature of the whole business is the deadly seriousness with which producers take their tawdry melodramas. Rich and expensive settings are lavished on the cheapest and most trivial themes. Subjects which stock companies would not dare stage in the corn belt are furnished forth in magnificent splendor on the screen. Preposterous plots, unworthy of a single rehearsal, are equipped with an opulence befitting the grandest spectacles of the masters, and launched with a clamor that might well herald an epic.

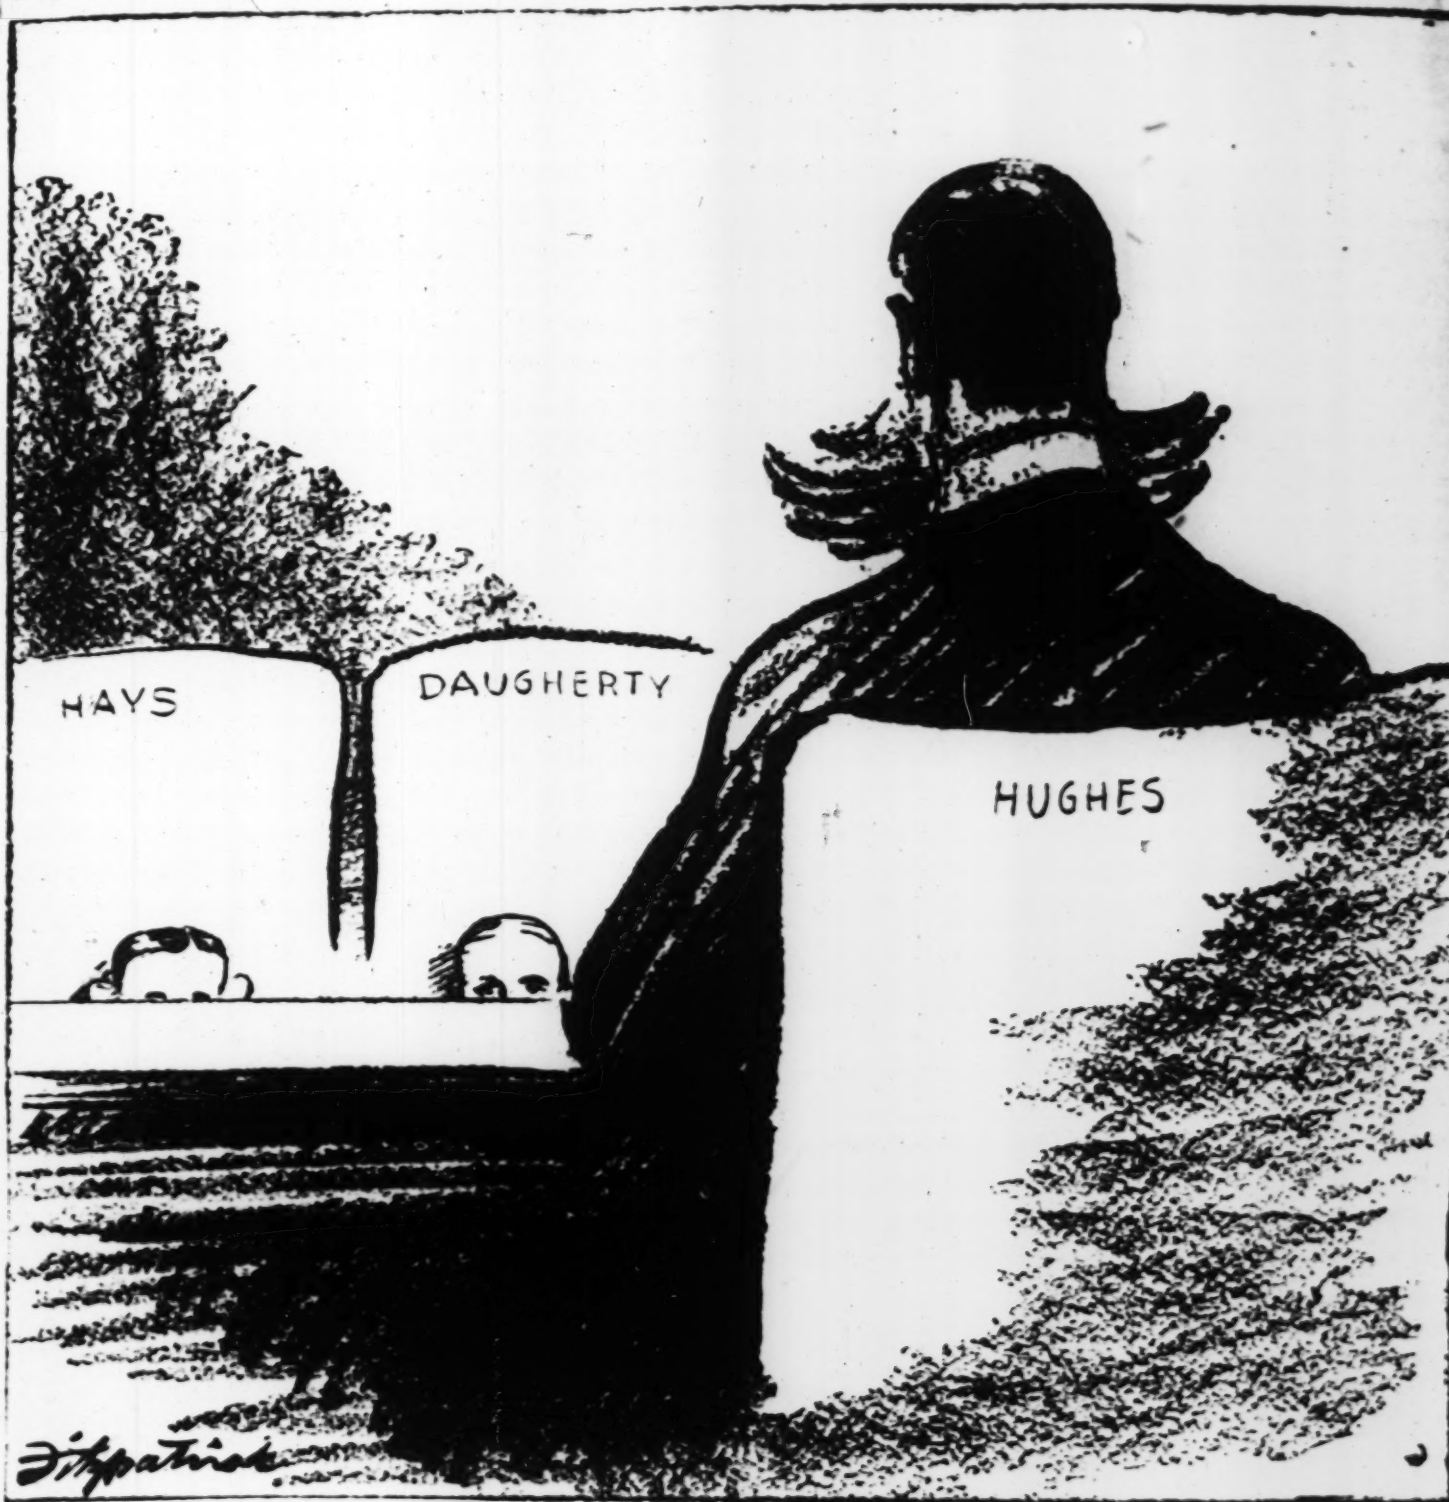

Worst of all, from the standpoint of public interest, is the cheapening influence which this condition undoubtedly is having on the standards and tastes of a large number of people. Spurious sentimentalities are given the dignity of genuine ideals, and artificial and florid portrayals are held out as valid reflections of life.

If the movies have fallen into the hands of those who only desire to make money, this pandering to base emotions is understandable, though none the less vicious. Such a course will bring its own reward. Those who bankrupt the screen morally and artistically will destroy its prestige and appeal, and eventually its profit. The public has a way of turning to rend those who have deceived it.

LOOKING ACROSS THE CABINET TABLE.

SOCRATES AND HIS PUPILS.

SOCRATES: I wonder if it ever struck you young men that an unenforceable law is probably more valuable than we have thought.

SOCRATES: Let us take prohibition. We can't enforce prohibition, but in the course of setting around trying it we find ourselves enforcing enforceable laws that have not been enforced before.

SOCRATES: That may be so, I think.

SOCRATES: The idea struck me on yesterday when I was reading the newspapers. Every policeman was on his toes. At the shadow of night fell there were addresses by heads of the Police Department similar to those made by football coaches before a football game. We heard all sorts of things like that before did we?

SOCRATES: Crime on Saturday night fell to a minimum. It was actually safe to be on the streets. We always have had enforceable laws which had been enforced, and which had made it quite safe to be on the streets.

SOCRATES: Certainly.

SOCRATES: It has always been illegal to hold people up, to commit murder and to rob people's homes.

SOCRATES: Yet all these crimes were freely committed until the police set out to enforce an unenforceable law. The instant they do that we have an entirely different state of affairs.

AS A WOMAN
THINKETHBy HELEN ROWLAND
How to Be Loved.

EVERYBODY wants to be loved! It is the one thing, that every normal human being wants MOST in the whole wide world. What? No? Oh, let's be honest—and admit it!

To love is a glorious luxury—but to BE loved is a life-long necessity. Wealth, power, honors, titles—what do you want them for?

To make yourself lovable, admired, sought after, desirable.

Why does an actress crave fame, money, popularity?

So that she may shine in someone's eyes—and be loved!

What do YOU want with success of any kind? To let it at the feet of someone who loves you—or to dangle it in the face of someone whom you wish to love you.

Love is the hors d'oeuvre, the bread, the meat, the wine, and the desert of life!

All aspiration, all accomplishment, all achievement, all struggle, all work, all roads lead to love.

It is the goal at the end of every race, the prize in every game.

And, as you grow older, and the glitter wears off your tinsel fancies, and one by one the little Christmas-tree candles of illusion sputter out, there is nothing worth while left—except to be loved!

Yet, how CAREFULLY we conceal our love-hunger, beneath our politeness, our vanity, our grouchiness, our cynicism, our sneers, our intolerance.

How conscientiously we set out to make ourselves lovable!—and how gloriously we succeed! We are SO lofty, SO indifferent, SO hypocritical!

Any man would rather be loved than "superior," yet somehow, he fancies that disapproval of everything proves his superiority. And he cheerfully spills the acid of criticism on the fertile hearts of those around him, and expects love to spring from it.

Any woman would rather be loved than—well, than be immortal! Yet she will deliberately build a wall of sensitiveness, and then, when she is self, and expect people to climb over it in order to love her.

We want tender words, we long for kisses—we expect to win them with brilliant arguers, scintillating wit, and impressive dignity.

High—ho!

We spend our whole lives struggling to acquire the things with which to impress—riches, knowledge, reputation, success, beauty—and then we sit back and figuratively remark, "Now, love me, if you dare!"

After all, you do not love a man because he is wealthy or successful—but because he is generous, genial, appreciative, kind, tolerant.

You do not love a woman because she is famous, but because she is sweet and gentle. You do not love her because she is clever and witty, but because she is gracious and cheerful and kissable and cuddlesome.

A woman doesn't love a man because he is "superior," but because he makes her feel that in his eyes SHE is superior to every other woman in the world.

A man doesn't love a woman because she understands Bacon, Browning, Euclid, Bunce, music, or grand opera—but because she understands HIM.

You do not love anybody for what he knows, or for what he has, or for the brilliant things he does, but for what he GIVES in sympathy, love, response, inspiration, understanding.

A building is perhaps the most hideous animal that ever walked or crawled—and the most lovable pet.

But nobody keeps a pet porcupine or a pet cat or a pet wasp.

You cannot shut out the sun—and keep warm.

Yet we poor, hungry, self-blinded human beings will deliberately shut out the sun of love—and try to keep our hearts warm with the little electric bulb of pride, vanity, dignity, or conceit.

No wonder the gods laugh—but I think they weep a little for us, too.

THE READING PUBLIC'S IMPRESSION OF WHAT PALM BEACH MUST LOOK LIKE

Housewife's Scrapbook

DISCOLORED marble may be restored to look like new: Take two parts washing soda, one part chalk and one part ground pumice stone. Have all finely pulverized and add sufficient water to form a paste. Rub it thoroughly over the stained marble and a few hours later remove with plain soap and water.

To remove grease spots from book pages sponge the stain carefully with ether or benzine, then put the leaf between two sheets of blotting paper and rapidly pass a hot iron over it.

Oil will keep black shoes from looking worn and will also preserve the leather. Rub the oil into the leather with a soft flannel cloth. If necessary wipe with a piece of dry flannel.

ASPARAGUS TURNOVER

PUT the butt ends from one can of asparagus (long spears) through the food chopper, add two cups of mashed potatoes, and mix with one egg. One tablespoon of grated onion, one teaspoon of salt and one-quarter teaspoon of pepper. Melt two tablespoons of butter in a hot frying pan, spread in the mixture and cook slowly until a brown crust is formed over the bottom. Sprinkle with grated cheese and fold like an omelet just before serving.

POTATO CUPS

CUT uniform potatoes in halves or thirds, according to size, pare them very thinly, cut off ends so they will stand. Boil in salted water, but first make into cups by carefully cutting out center. Take any bits of cold vegetables, such as peas, cauliflower, etc., making a rich cream sauce or using the bechamel sauce, or you can try the macedones of vegetables in glass bottles containing seven or more vegetables.

UNCOMMON SENSE

Achieving the Impossible.

By JOHN BLAKE.

NEVER believe the man who tells you that the day of great opportunity is passed. It is the essence of the failure, the justification of the loser.

To be great—or even to be very successful—is to achieve what is commonly supposed to be the impossible. That would be discouraging for youth if it were not for the fact that it is being accomplished right along.

When a man tells you that in a time of vast business and social organization no man can rise beyond a certain point, ask him what he knows about Lloyd George.

This man, now Premier of Great Britain and by many persons held to be the greatest man living in the world, was a few years ago a poor Welsh boy, receiving his education at the hands of a cobbler uncle.

If ever a lad had an excuse for believing that he was born to a station in which he must remain all his life, it was young George. He had to touch his cap to the squire of the neighborhood. The heights on which the rich and the titled people of this district lived seemed utterly impossible for a poor boy to scale.

Yet this boy, by ability and determination, took away his seat in Parliament that was once held by the man to whom he touched his cap, and later saved England for the aristocracy who despised him.

Into the world young Lloyd George brought absolutely nothing. Give brains and energy. He had no birth, no money, no standing.

He belonged to a class against which the whole British system was set. The difficulties of this position could be comprehended by the people of another country.

It was the impossible achieved—judging the impossible by the general idea of it.

You hundred of other boys, in every quarter of the world, have done and will do the same things. Think of that when the pessimists tell you that the day of opportunity is over, and that brains and energy can no longer win their way in the world.

—Peter Rabbit

PETER RABBIT watched Jimmy Skunk and Mrs. Skunk and the seven little skunk children. Skunks out of sight. They were so fat they tottered as they walked. Peter wanted to follow them. He was just burning up with curiosity to follow and see where they would go, and what they would do. It was the first time he ever had been around when Jimmy Skunk came out after his long sleep and Peter did want to see just how he would act and what he would do.

Had Jimmy been alone I suspect that Peter would have followed him. But Jimmy wasn't alone. Mrs. Skunk and the seven little skunk children were with him. Peter sighed. Each one of those Skunks had a powerful little scent gun. It would be easy enough to keep out of the way of one, but nine was altogether a different matter. Some people are cross and easily provoked when they first wake up. It might be so with Jimmy Skunk and his family. Peter felt that he couldn't afford to run any such risk.

He decided that he would stay where he was hidden in the old stone wall near their home and wait for them to return. But the longer he waited the more nervous he became. Suppose, just suppose, one of them should discover him there and lose his temper. The result might be very unpleasant, very unpleasant indeed. Finally Peter decided that the wisest thing for him to do would be to go home. So as soon as the Black Shadows came creeping along the old stone wall, Peter started for the dear Old Briar-patch.

It was a week before Peter saw Jimmy Skunk or any of his family again, although every night he visited the far corner of the Old Orchard where Jimmy's home was. Then one evening quite unexpectedly he came face to face with Jimmy Skunk.

"Hello, Peter!" exclaimed Jimmy. "I see you have managed to come through the winter safely. I was wondering what had become of you. What are you staring at me so for? Don't you know it isn't polite to stare at anyone?"

"I—I beg your pardon," stammered Peter. "I didn't mean to be impolite. The fact is you've changed so since I last saw you that I hardly knew you. Then you were so fat I seemed as if you could hardly walk. Now—Jimmy, you actually are thin!"

Jimmy sighed. "This is right, Peter. This is right," said he. "And I guess I'll be thinner before I'm fat again. I haven't had one square meal, not one, since I came out of my winter sleep a little over a week ago, and it is just the same with Skunk and the children. You know you can't keep fat on nothing."

"But you kept fat all winter," protested Peter. "You were about as fat when you came out as when you went to sleep at the beginning of the winter. I know, for I saw you. And I don't believe you had anything to eat all that time."

"True enough. True enough," replied Jimmy Skunk. "What I should have said is that you can't keep fat on nothing unless you sleep up all that time. We have just about used up all that fat. It is what has kept us alive while we have been trying to find food. My, but I would give almost anything for one good square meal!"

"I don't see why we should be so hungry," said Peter. "You were so fat when you came out of your winter sleep. You must have had something to eat all that time. I don't believe you had anything to eat all that time."

"True enough. True enough," replied Jimmy Skunk. "What I should have said is that you can't keep fat on nothing unless you sleep up all that time. We have just about used up all that fat. It is what has kept us alive while we have been trying to find food. My, but I would give almost anything for one good square meal!"

Mary Is Here

SECOND INSTALLMENT.

What she was keeping them for she didn't know—perhaps to inquire of herself. Still she kept them.

Wallace, being in spite of his incredible affairs with Dulcibella a psychologist of some attainment, might have suggested an explanation as she painfully succumbed to a quiet little person who came rather unwillingly, when her lovely sister called her, to assist in the forming of a circle.

He had frequently to hold her hand, but he rarely looked at her. The contact—for the evenings about the table in the living room continued—was to Vivien, but cool, untroubled composure to him.

Vivien's one glimmer of comfort lay in the fact that not even Dulcibella dared a spark from the too-keen gray eyes, which she kept turned on him.

"Rather interesting!" was the best Dulcibella got after a good hour of mystic if indefinite communication with her.

Whatever drama the thing possessed was wearing a little thin when Vivien herself moved into the limelight one night toward the latter part of April. The town by that time was on the crest of a wave of spiritism. Every other household owned a Planchette or a Ouija—Dulcibella, feeling that the occult had become common, was about ready to give it up, she felt, in any case, Wallace's interest amusingly waning—as it undoubtedly was till Vivien's extraordinary behavior startled everyone.

It was on a gently rainy night, with most of the windows open, with the scent of lilacs heavy in the room, and with a languid little fire dying down, that Dulcibella, the Carter girl, Blake, Robbins, Wallace and Vivien sat about the table.

"The room was half in shadow," she hands touched, but without tension. "Planchette, now or never, but a wearisome platitude, moved without a sound under Dulcibella's half-hearted fingers."

"Conditions are not right," murmured Dulcibella apologetically, but even she laughed a little as she said it.

Vivien had withdrawn from the circle of hands. She was sitting with a pencil between her fingers scribbling idly on a sheet of paper that lay before her. She was horribly tired of it all, but politeness required that she wait at least a little longer before slipping away to her own room and to bed.

The old story of the most casual way she held herself rigidly away from thought of him when she could. She realized acutely that he was aware of her existence, nothing more. She said to herself:

"It's not fair—that this should have happened to me—it's not fair—I won't have it. I can't have it. I've seen him only a dozen times—I'll use my will. I won't be a pitiful little fool. I won't suffer like this!"

The pencil trailed off into a long, wavering line. Wallace put his fingers on Vivien's wrist. "Where," he asked in a low, distinct voice, "does the pencil trail off into a long, wavering line?"

"Where," he asked in a low, distinct voice, "does the pencil trail off into a long, wavering line?"

"Where," he asked in a low, distinct voice, "does the pencil trail off into a long, wavering line?"

"Where," he asked in a low, distinct voice, "does the pencil trail off into a long, wavering line?"

"Where," he asked in a low, distinct voice, "does the pencil trail off into a long, wavering line?"

She's got wonderful eyes, hasn't she?"

"O, Vivien's a nice little thing," said Dulcibella sweetly.

She turned up the lights and restored in some subtle femininity the accustomed ease and pleasantness of the room. In her own mind she decided that spiritism as an amusement was certainly played out and would have to go.

"I'll give the Planchette away tomorrow," thought Dulcibella. "This sort of thing is getting to be a bore."

With a soft word or so she attached young Blake. She had perhaps been overlooking him, rather. Eventually she turned about to Wallace, having to her own satisfaction, restored the balance of power, but Wallace was not in the room.

"He went out in the hall after Vivien," Robbins reported, displaying a touch of amusement. He had had his day in Dulcibella's favor, and had come forth not without a certain understanding of her methods.

In the chilly half-light of the narrow hall Wallace was standing, one foot on the first step, looking up at Vivien. He had stopped.

"Dulcibella thinks I did it," she told him. "I don't want to talk about it. It wasn't pleasant—the whole thing. Please go back to the others, Mr. Wallace! They will be wondering."

"Let them wonder," said Wallace. "I am deeply interested in this evening. One doesn't often get an absolutely honest and intelligent subject for experiment like yourself."

"I am not a subject for experiment, if you please," said Vivien, coldly.

"Say assistant in experiment," he pleaded quickly. "Would you consider that, Miss Doane?"

He smiled as Dulcibella had said, it went straight through one Vivien's mind under it as if he had hurt her. She began defensively.

"I didn't understand tonight—I don't at all believe in that sort of thing. I'm not at all hysterical."

"Which makes it all the more valuable," Dulcibella explained. "You just relaxed, as I told you, eh? There seemed to be some outside force at work—did you know what you were doing to write before you wrote it?"

Vivien gave him his honest eyes to read.

"I knew as I wrote each word what it was, and I knew the whole thing isn't a bit clever to me. I don't like it. I shall never do it again."

"I'm sorry to hear you say that," said Wallace quietly, "because I was going to ask if I might come over tomorrow night and try it out a second time."

"For the theater? Were you on the stage?"

Unmoved, the pencil darted off. It moved faster and faster, with Wallace's fingers slipping in a fresh sheet of paper as soon as the old one gave out.

"Yes—I was on the stage—only a little part. For a long time I had nothing. I was a black dress and an old hat, in a crowd. Afterward I was the old man's daughter. I had 10 lines to say. I died in the first act. Then I used to take the part of my niece and go home and read in the little After. I studied hard. I read plays. I had enough to eat, but not too much. I had enough to wear, but not pretty things. I was young, but I had no where to go."

"After a while you had a bigger part," asked Wallace. He leaned so near Vivien that his shoulder brushed her. His eyes were keen as knives on her small, tense face.

Without looking at him she wrote: "After a while I fell one time crawling a slippery stair on my way to the theater and a taxicab ran over me and I died on the way to the hospital."

"O, good Lord!" said Blake. He ended on an odd sound of horror.

"Vivien!" said Dulcibella languidly. "Aren't you ashamed of yourself?"

The Carter girl and the Robbins man looked at each other doubtfully. He caught her hand and held it in mock protection. She glanced over her shoulder into the shadow with a kind of fear that was not altogether in jest.

Vivien put down the pencil, pushed back her chair, and stood up. Her face was burning and her lips set tight.

"I won't do it any more," she said. "If that's what you think. Good night!"

She went swiftly out of the room. A little outbreak of protest followed her unheeded protest and falling easily into silence. After all, it was Vivien Doane who had been sitting there before their eyes, scribbling orally of lilacs and dogwood and roses with only two windows and three electric lights. Vivien obviously considered the whole thing an amusing bit of fraud. She would be apt to know, young Blake, a trifle ashamed of his susceptibility, began to laugh. He moved to Dulcibella's side and sat down there.

"Your sister ought to go on the stage herself with that stunt," he suggested. "Try now, Mr. good!"

"Tomorrow night is the Golf Club dance," said Vivien stiffly. "Dulcibella will be going to that."

"Exactly why I thought we might experiment coolly—without the dramatic element of a crowd."

"You mean just me?"

"And myself," said Wallace. He smiled again, most unexpectedly Vivien's heart stumbled in her slight little body. She choked back a feeling of shame that he should be able to move her so, without himself caring. She tried to refuse him and failed. At some still beyond the curtained doorway of the living room he insisted hurriedly:

"You'll do it, won't you? I'm really very much in earnest about it. I can explain when we're getting at it, quietly, a number of things which will make it seem so un-canny."

The slip beyond the curtains grew more definite. Vivien said suddenly, with a queer intensity:

"Did you really know a girl named Mary?"

She held her breath before his answer, which, however, came madly and deliberately and noncommittally:

"That, as you'll see, when I go over it with you tomorrow night, makes very little difference in the writing."

All the difference in the world to Vivien, but she could not, in common decency, tell him so. She said desperately:

"Very well—tomorrow night then, upon the appointed rendezvous, or, rather, upon the appointing of it, entered Dulcibella, gently amused, as who would not have been to find another Richard in the field."

"Coming back, dear?" said Dulcibella to Vivien, smiling slightly.

"Not tonight," said Vivien, and went on up the stairs.

It was, perhaps, the tone of Dulcibella's question as much as anything else—that hardened Vivien in her decision to invite Mary's presence again. She was startled and considerably disturbed by what had happened in the living room. That she could have stopped the writing was probable. As Wallace had suggested, she had had herself un-satisfied and had let herself go with the remarks that had moved her. Certainly she had not known what she was going to write until the word formed itself on the paper before her. She, as well as young Blake, had drawn back in sensitive horror from that simple phrase: "I shall never do it again."

"And I died on the way to the hospital. . . ."
